WRITTEN SUMMARY

Drum Dance is a dance that is done to songs. The dancer holds and beats the wood of a drum with a stick. Drum dance is a part of our culture. People danced to celebrate many events. At the end of a good hunt, people danced. They danced to celebrate Christmas and Easter and other special days. Even before the Christians arrived, people celebrated the change of seasons. Inuit danced to have fun.

The songs that the people danced to were special. The songs told stories of things that happened and experiences people had. The dance helped to tell the stories too.
